Configuration

The LG Member List extension includes only two settings.

1. Member Group IDs
2. Number of rows to display in select box

Member Group IDs [required]

A comma separated list of member group IDs. Only members from these groups will be displayed.

Rows [required]

Number of rows to display in the select box. One row will display a drop down box.

Usage

Now that the extension has been installed and setup correctly a new field type will appear when creating custom fields.

1. Create a new custom field in an existing weblog and choose LG Member List as the field type.
2. Create a new entry in the weblog
3. Choose a member
4. The member ID is stored as the custom field value

Using the custom field value in a custom query

Now that you have the member id you can use that value combined with a custom query. A basic custom query including a join to the custom member fields table is given below:

{exp:query sql="SELECT exp_members.member_id      as q_member_id, exp_members.screen_name      as q_member_screen_name,
exp_members.location         as q_member_location,
exp_members.avatar_filename  as q_member_avatar_url,
exp_members.avatar_width    as q_member_avatar_width,
exp_members.avatar_height   as q_member_avatar_height,
exp_member_data.m_field_id_11 as q_member_custom_field
FROM   exp_members, exp_member_data
WHERE  exp_members.member_id = {your_custom_field_that_stores_the_member_id}
AND    exp_members.member_id = exp_member_data.member_id
LIMIT 1"}
{q_member_screen_name}
{/exp:query}
